Declare Themselves

An editor's eye is extremely sensitive to new and unusual pieces of mail — having to scan 90 percent of the daily submissions into the waste-basket without opening. And therefore I was intrigued when an envelope arrived yesterday bearing the strange imprint "Gaebele."

"Gaebele," it seems, is the name for the Annual Spring Festival of the University of Arkansas; the third annual festival will be held April 28-30 and I am invited, and shame on me for not knowing instantly what "Gaebele" is all about. Certainly an editor who throws away 90 per cent of his mail without opening it ought to know what the other 10 per cent is about without reading it!

But I had to read this one, I confess. Frank McGeebe, chairman of accommodations and arrangements, puts in this "plug" for the Spring Festival (the aforesaid "Gaebele")

"In trying to discern ways of placing our colorful event in the annals with other renowned collegiate functions . . . we are petitioning you to honor us by being our guest here in Fayetteville."

Now I know the kids probably broadcast this invitation to every newspaper and radio station in Arkansas — but it's nice just the same. Just the same, I won't be there. But I do wish 'em luck, and whatever we can do to back up their imagination and energy in promoting "Gaebele" as an annual festival that will bring glamor and romance to Arkansas in the Spring-time — that we will do.

One hundred New York City policemen are guarding the Hotel Waldorf-Astoria where the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions is holding a three-day session this week-end in the interest of "world peace." The meeting is labeled by our State Department as "an outlet for Communist propaganda," and the cops are on hand to make sure there's no shooting.

Strongest evidence, for me at least, that the really is a Communist rally, is the behavior of our native Reds. Anybody but a Communist would think the proper procedure would be to turn out a crowd for your side. But the native Reds for their New York making strictly all in order for the visiting Winston Churchill, who arrived here simultaneously with the Russian Reds.

I was shocked by one name in the personnel of the National Council of Arts, Sciences and Professions. It is the name of a Communist, and the council's executive committee — and a former assistant United States Attorney General.

Mr. Rogge was under severe criticism while connected with the federal government, and is now active of an outfit which the government itself denounces.

This is factual evidence in support of the suspicion held by an increasing number of Americans that some federal deputy administrators in the near past took the taxpayers' money without giving undivided loyalty to their job and their oath and their country.

Spurned Love Brings Death of Pair

New York, March 26 — (AP) — A sequence of suicides was described by police today after a society matron was found strangled in her luxurious Park avenue apartment.

Police said wealthy Mrs. Helen Reinberg, 51, was slain by her lover-smile, but by a man named language tutor, who then hung himself beneath the wheels of a subway train two hours later.

A note left by the tutor, Jose Del Pino, 37, a small, dark former university Spanish teacher, said Mrs. Reinberg "broke my heart," by rebuffing his love.

"I just got through making the greatest blunder of my life," the note said. "I can't think because I'm completely crazy."

The note was apparently written after Mrs. Reinberg was killed, police said.

Her near-nude body was found in her fashionable seven-room apartment yesterday. A man's handprint was noted about her throat. Police said she had been dead about 24 hours.

Mrs. Reinberg was the wife of wealthy Gustave Reinberg, vice president of one of the world's largest copper mining firms, the Cerro de Pasco Copper Corporation. Police said he is in Lima, Peru, on business.

The Reinberg's 17-year-old daughter, Anne, is a student at Vassar college in Poughkeepsie, N. Y. Many formerly taught Spanish at Brown university, at Providence, R. I., at Middlebury college, in Vermont, and at Columbia university here.

Police said he had given language lessons to Mrs. Reinberg for the past three years.

At Providence, Prof. Hunter Kellenberger, head of Brown's modern languages department, said Del Pino was known as a Spanish republican refugee.

His 16-year-old daughter were said to be out of this country. At the time he taught at Brown from September, 1946, until June, 1948, it was said he sought to have his wife, then in Spain, admitted to the U. S. as a teacher, but a visa was refused.

No General Rush by Cities to Change Rent Law

Washington, March 26 — (AP) — Congress members working out compromise rent bill try to crack today what Senator Sparkman (D-Ala.) called "the toughest nut of all" — what to do about rent increases.

Senate and house conferees faced up to that job after agreeing last night on a broad "home rule" general provision. Under it, states, cities, towns and villages could scrap rent curbs at any time if the state governor approved.

However, an Associated Press survey indicated there would be no general rush by local communities to get rid of controls under such a law. The check showed many city officials and several governors in favor of continued controls.

The present federal rent law expires next Thursday, March 31. The house has passed a bill to extend controls 15 months. A senate-approved bill provides for a 12 to 15-month continuance.

This is one of the differences the senate-house conference committee still has to iron out. Other—the one Sparkman called the "toughest nut" — deals with rent increases.

The senate bill calls for some rent increases up to 10 per cent, in two five per cent steps. Under the house measure, the government would have to fix rent ceilings, "so far as practicable," at a level to assure landlords "a reasonable return on the reasonable value" of their property.

Sparkman said it had been suggested that both the house and the senate provisions dealing with rent increases be kept in the final bill.

Sparkman, chief of the senate group, said the compromise bill "is better as it stands now than the separate bills passed by the two houses." He predicted that President Truman will sign it when it gets to the White House, probably early next week.

"The home rule" provision approved by the conferees keeps a senate section which lets state legislatures pass laws removing federal controls throughout the state or in certain areas. Such a law would have to be approved by the governor, but if he vetoed it, the legislature could override him.

Also retained in the bill is the senate provision letting the individual states take over rent controls.

On the "home rule" side, the conferees further agreed on separate machinery for removal of federal controls from cities, towns and villages in cases where the state governor gave his blessing. If he did not approve, that would end it.

The resolution calling for local decontrol would be the law of the land by the local governing body — a city council, for example — after holding a public hearing on the matter.

"The decontrol action freed the major portion of an official's salary," the conferees also would have to decontrol "any unincorporated locality" in the remainder of the area.

Refund on taxes on agricultural consumed gasoline under provisions of a new law passed by this year's Legislature will be explained at the Hempstead County Fair Bureau meeting Wednesday March 30 at 10 o'clock in the Hempstead County Courthouse announces Ury McKenzie, president of the fair.

Arkansas Commissioner of Revenue Dean Morley will have a representative present to explain the provisions and mechanics of the gas tax refunding law.

The Arkansas Farm Bureau Federation composed of the different county units of which Hempstead County is a member has been working for several years to get a law passed to enable farmers to get refunds on their off-the-road farm power consumed gasoline.

The law becomes effective April 1. It is understood that a permit must be held by a farmer before any gasoline purchase will be eligible for refund.

The Hempstead County Farm Bureau now has 551 members according to the records of Ivan Blythe of Rocky Mount, Secretary. The county organization would like to secure 628 members so as to have three voting delegates eligible to take part in the State Convention this fall.

Leukemia Victim Receives Her Dying Wish

Columbus, Ga., March 25 — (AP) — Annie Rose Robinson, who got her dying wish for cotton candy, died last night.

Persons throughout Georgia responded when the seven-year-old victim of leukemia made the request last week. Doctors had given her only 24 hours to live. None of the candy was available here.

By her bed when she died was a potted plant decorated with $100 in bills and checks. The money was the gift from schoolmates to buy all the fluffy confection she wanted.

Demure Look to Be Vogue in Milwaukee

Milwaukee, March 26 — (UP) — The "demure look" will be the vogue among Milwaukee's Catholic high school girls at spring proms this year.

Most Rev. Moses E. Kiley, archbishop of Milwaukee, issued a directive that banned the wearing of strapless evening gowns, or any style of dress that bares the shoulders, at parochial high school dances.

The directive, issued yesterday, also set ceilings on how late the dances may run, limited some of the expenses boys may spend on their dates, and established general rules for student conduct at the affairs.

The Reverend Edmund J. Goebel, superior of the archdiocese, said the action was taken because of the "rise of juvenile delinquency" in the community.

As a result of the ban on revealing frocks, many girls hastened to exchange the dresses they had planned to wear to spring proms.

Some mothers, who already had begun work on their daughters' gowns, were seeking patterns to conform with the archbishop's ruling.

Violators of Kiley's orders will be "dismissed from the prom." Under the directive, boys are banned from wearing formal attire. They must wear business suits.

Goebel said the order was issued after parents, queried in a circulation of questionnaires, expressed common concern over prom expenses. The directive was written by agreement of the principals of the 15 schools involved.

The order limited the price of admission tickets to $3 and advised that no boy should pay more than $1.50 for his date's corsage.

Instead of letting the students go to night clubs, expensive restaurants following the dances, Kiley recommended that parents provide for "modest house parties" in their homes. The parents had complained about a lack of suitable entertainment for the young people after the dances.

Dance hours were restricted to the period from 8:30 to 11:30 p. m. No couples will leave the hall to sit out dances and "outside couples" will not be admitted.

The students were ordered to be home from proms by 1:30 a. m. unless their parents request an earlier hour.

Goebel said it was "the first time in the history of the high schools that such specific regulations regarding proms have been formulated."

Saves Big Business Only Key to U. S. Prosperity

New York, March 25 — (AP) — Dr. George S. Benson, president of Harding College, Searcy, Ark., believes big business is the very key to American prosperity.

He spoke last night at a meeting of the National Industrial Conference Board, Inc.

Benson wanted that much of labor by developing an efficiency per man hour, which led the way to high wages; by providing "a much greater degree of safety for its workers;" by offering shorter work hours, better tools and greater job security.

The educator contended that big business is good for small business because it is the small businessman's "best customer." He said that since 1970, in spite of the growth of big business, "we businesses even in proportion to our population."

Only through big business, he contended, can natural resources be economically developed.

Moscow Is Reorganizing High Command

Berlin, March 26. — (UP) — Russia has revived its war-time state defense council and is reorganizing its army high command, reports reaching Berlin through usually well-informed channels said today.

American official quarters said the reports indicated Soviet anxiety over the unity of the west under the Atlantic pact.

The defense council which piloted Russia through World War II, has not been heard of since 1945. At that time its eight members were Premier Joseph Stalin, V. M. Molotov, Niko A. Bulganin, Georgi M. Malenkov, L. P. Beria, N. A. Voznesensky, A. N. Mikoyan and L. M. Kaganovich.

The last four members to retain departmental portfolios — Molotov, Mikoyan, Voznesensky and Bulganin — have been relieved of them during the last three weeks, leaving them free to concentrate on policy matters.

All but Voznesensky remain deputy premiers and members of the Politburo. Voznesensky was relieved specifically of his duties both as chairman of the state planning commission and as a deputy premier, and may have been removed altogether from the Soviet hierarchy.

In the army reorganization, Marshal Semion K. Timoshenko is serving as chief of staff with Marshal Fedor I. Tolbukhin under him as commander of occupation.

Marshal Georgi Zhukov, who was sent into virtual obscurity as commander of the Odessa district after directing the capture of Berlin, was reported designated to command the Caucasian-Black sea area.

Marshal Ivan Konev is expected to command the southwest Russian area, including the Balkans. Marshal Rodion Malinovsky, to command the Far East area, and Col. Gen. V. V. Kurasov, 50 command the Caucasian-Black sea area.

Egyptain Princess to Marry

Cairo, March 26 — (AP) — The beautiful Princess Fawzia, former empress of Iran and sister of King Farouk, will marry Ismail Shireh Bey at simple ceremonies here Monday.

The royal palace announced last November 19 that the princess, who had borne two sons to her first husband, had been divorced by the Shah of Iran. Their daughter, Princess Chahinaz, remained with the Shah in Tehran.

The princess, famed for her beauty, married the Shah in March 1938, when he was heir to the throne. She was 17 years old and he 19. She was proclaimed empress of Iran Sept. 17, 1941.

They separated nearly three years ago, the palace at Tehran announcing her return to Egypt because Iran's climate disagreed with her. Her divorce last November came as no surprise.

Shireh Bey, 31, traces his ancestry through many generations to the royal family. A graduate of Cambridge university, he is a government servant, and has held several government posts. He was secretary of the Egyptian delegation to the San Francisco conference at which the United Nations was conceived. He was secretary of Egypt's United Nations delegation last year, and recently was liaison officer with the U. S. colonel in Egypt's armistice negotiations with Israel at Rhodes.

Administration Stripped of Military Men

Washington, March 26 — (AP) — The Truman administration is now virtually stripped of the military men who once played important roles in the nation's foreign policy.

President Truman apparently did not plan it that way, despite the often severe criticism leveled against him for first term for the "military influence" which some columnists and lawmakers saw in U. S. foreign affairs.

It has been a series of resignations, most of which he accepted reluctantly, which has substantially changed the character of Truman's team of advisors on international matters.

The latest came yesterday when Admiral William D. Leahy, 73, retired as a member of the president's White House staff and Gen. Walter Bedell Smith quit one of the nation's most important diplomatic assignments, that of ambassador to Moscow.

Leahy, who during the war was U. S. envoy to Vichy France, was Mr. Truman's chief of staff. In the early days of the administration, he reportedly played a large part in developing this nation's "tough" policy toward Russia.

The resignations started in January when the ailing Gen. George C. Marshall quit as secretary of state and was replaced by Dean Acheson, an attorney and former state department official.

At the same time Robert A. Lovett was succeeded as Under-Secretary by Budget Director James B. Webb. Lovett was wartime assistant secretary of war for air.

Secretary of Defense James Forrestal's resignation is effective at the end of this month. He is credited by insiders with having been deeply concerned with the development of foreign policy — as well as strictly military affairs.

Forrestal will be replaced by Louis Johnson, an attorney and former commander of the American Legion, who is expected to concentrate on military matters, except where they directly affect foreign policy.

The Kiwanis Minstrel, the most successful ever held played to a packed house last night despite bad weather and it was successful financially also, officials reported today.

In fact chairs had to be placed in the school auditorium to take care of the crowd. And the show went off considerably better the second performance and the receptive audience thoroughly enjoyed it.

The specialty act featuring Luke and Duke turned out to be Joe McCully and Ernest Ridgill of the Melody Boys. Tom Lavin, no stranger to Hope folks, gave some special numbers.

Miss Sara Lauterback was named queen of the minstrel and received a $20 prize. Miss Charlotte Tarpley was second, getting $10 and Jo Ann Shields was third and received $5.

Mrs. Alva Reynerson was accompanist.

Jack Golomb Has Mightiest Record in Ring History — He Made the Gloves

By HAL BOYLE — (AP) — Nobody in the boxing game today can lay a glove on Jack Golomb, age 36, weight 125.

But many a ring champion in the last 30 years has fought a lightweight — has crumbled and gone down from the crashing impact of Golomb's own flying gloves.

A few of them have been: Henry Armstrong, Gene Tunney, Jimmie Carter, and — yes, even Joe Louis.

This would give Golomb the mightiest record in ring history except for the fact that in none of these memorable fights was Jack's own fists in his gloves.

He merely made the gloves and sold them. Long ago the little Latvian immigrant decided that, for him at least, there was more money in putting boxing gloves on other people's fists than on his own.

He made the gloves, and he made a 90-pound kid after fighting four times as an amateur.

"I had a fifty-fifty record," he said. "I win two, lose two."

But today he claims 95 per cent of all modern champions have trained or fought with his gloves. And he built up a $1,000,000-a-year sports equipment business from a $5 investment. He got the $5 from his father in 1910.

"I was a ring-crazy kid down on the east side," he said. "I was supposed to be working for my father, who sold tailor trimming supplies. But I spent most of my time repairing boxing gloves for fighters in the neighborhood."

One day the father came to him and said: "Jacob, the only way a man can learn the value of a dollar is to go into business for himself. Here is $5. Go into business for your self."

Police Search for Alcohol Poison Victims

New York, March 26 — (AP) — Police searched back alleys and lodging houses along the Bowery today for possible alcohol-poisoning victims after a wave of eight deaths.

At least four of the victims were reported to have died of drink called "smoke," a deadly mixture of wood alcohol and water. Autopsies were to be performed today.

It was the largest death toll from such a cause since prohibition days when scores of down-and-out Bowery residents were killed by the stomach-searing concoction.

Three of the victims lived at a hotel, where two bottles partly filled with a whitish liquid, described as "smoke," were found.

One man was found dead yesterday on the street. Two were found dead in their rooms. The others died in hospitals after being found ill.

Night Session of Peace Parley Upset By Jeers

New York, March 26 — (AP) — A tension-charged "world peace" conference goes into its keynote sessions today after hearing a magazine editor declare Americans "do not want peace at any price."

Hisses and jeers broke out six times in the grand ballroom of the Waldorf-Astoria hotel last night as Norman Cousins, editor of the Saturday Review of Literature, spoke.

He accused the conference of owing allegiance to an "outside government." There was some applause when he sat down, but his words were drowned in a roar.

Then Playwright Lillian Hellman began her address, saying: "I would recommend, Mr. Cousins, that when you talk about your hosts at dinner, wait until you have gone home to do it."

Outside, 2,000 pickets, protesting the conference, tramped and chanted in the rain.

About the same number of writers, artists and scientists from many parts of the world filled the room to capacity as the three-day affair opened.

Internationally-renowned Soviet Composer Dmitri Shostakovich told the assembly he hoped the "general effort" of the parley would bear fruit. He heads a seven-man Soviet delegation.

Speaking through an interpreter, he greeted his American hosts, saying: "We are united with them in accomplishing the task of defending peace against its enemies."

Urging a firmer "link between the representatives of culture of our two peoples," he added: "This friendship and the resulting mutual understanding will contribute the establishment of peace in the world so much desired by millions of ordinary people in all countries."

As a musician and a representative of the art, he said, he translated from one language to another x x x, I particularly realize how much can be done for the cause of peace by the establishment of firm and friendly relations upon trust and mutual respect."

Other speakers from in front of and behind the iron curtain pleaded their case for peace in today's troubled world.

The sentence was handed out by circuit judge Audrey Stratton yesterday. He also placed the 50-year-old woman on probation for 3 years.

Tried for the second time on a charge of fatally beating her husband, 55-year-old Paul Robotham, Jan. 19, 1948, Mrs. Robotham was found guilty by a Johnson county jury Wednesday. Her first trial ended in a hung jury.

House Back On Vet Pension Merry-Go-Round

Washington, March 26 — (AP) — A still busy day was back on the veterans pension merry-go-round today.

Rep. Rankin (D-Miss.) stepped back to the controls yesterday to introduce a limited pension bill for veterans of World War I.

Only Thursday, after the house passed his much-battled pension bill for all World War I servicemen, a disappointed Rankin had said no pension legislation could pass at this session.

But just a day later he nounced back with his new proposal. Introduced, he said, by request. He said the American Legion, many members of the house veterans committee, of which he is chairman, had urged the new bill.

Of its prospects, Rankin declared: "I'm making it optimistic. Before my first bill got to the house, he had confidence in its passage by an overwhelming majority."

Rankin told the house he hoped to have his bill up for consideration in a short time.

Whereas the Mississippians that bill provided $50 a month payable at age 60 to $118,800.00, or $118,800.00 at age 65 to $118,800.00, World War I and II veterans, the second is considerably less inclusive and probably more costly.

It is limited to the approximately $5,500,00

DOROTHY DIX

Ideal Wife

Dear Dorothy Dix: What rules should a woman follow in order to be a good wife? Which rules become most important in rearing a family as the years go by and the children are growing up? How can I please my husband and avoid friction resulting from my faults?
MRS. D.G.C.

Answer: As long as just plain, ordinary, run-of-the-mill human beings marry each other, no one will ever be wise enough to devise a code of conduct for husbands and wives that will enable them to give perfect satisfaction to the party of the other part. Old Mother Nature settles that question when every baby is born by giving the two sexes different personalities, different tastes and desires.
So-o-o, dear lady, there is no follow this rule-and-you-can't fail formula for being a good wife, as there is for making a good cup cake. There are too many exceptions to every rule to make it a sound working proposition. However, in my humble opinion, the woman who comes nearest to being an ideal wife is the understanding woman.

She doesn't expect the impossible. She doesn't expect a tired husband to be a businessman to keep up the tactics of a woman's lover. She doesn't weep when her husband is grumpy and fights about the bills nor does she pose like a plaster saint. She just takes life as it comes and makes the best of it.
Set Rules Not Practical
And as for rearing children by set rules, that would be a good joke if the consequences were not so tragic. Now in Heaven's name are you going to bring up children by a set of rules? They are not. They are born with their own brains and eyes of the same amount of brains?

So-o-o, sister, quit worrying yourself over trying to live your life according to rules. Take it easy. Don't try to be an exemplary wife and mother. Just be comfortable. Live with and love him until he is the best of men.
Dear Miss Dix: I married a very pretty young girl soon after returning home from overseas service. She seemed to have a good disposition, but after marriage I knew I was in for a rough and rugged siege. When she is in a good humor and everything is going her way,

ROGER THE LODGER

By Elizabeth R. Roberts

The Story: With the housing shortage early in the war, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lodger, a paying guest, a sergeant they call Roger the Lodger, Roger takes over, names himself one of the family, drives the family car everywhere, including into a ditch, helps Mrs. Lodger in the kitchen and invites guests, including a general and a major, to dinner.
Some people's hackles rise and warn them when they are being made use of, and they say No. My hackles rise all right, but all they do is to turn my neck red because I can't say no. I can castep all around an issue, but like crazy, and end up leaving the final decision to my opponent.
As we washed the dishes, Roger said, "You know, Lee, you mustn't lean on me too confidently. There's no certainty of my being stationed here."
"No?" I said hopefully.
"No," Roger echoed gravely. "I've been thinking you should meet some of the men I think you'd find congenial. Our colonel, for instance."
It startled me that the paucity of our friendships was so apparent. Rob would have been born in Montana except that his mother elected to spend that winter in Florida.
He'd grown up with the native sons of the town, somehow, and he'd been invited to join the top-flight sewing circle, dancing club, literary club, music club, travel club, contract bridge club, the Junior League, and several other organizations. But Roger plugged him. "Colonel Morris is free tomorrow night. I suggested he hold the evening until he heard from me."
In spite of Roger's starved childhood, in spite of his uniform and potential as a hero, I was about to address him with some well-chosen words—when Rob came in to the kitchen to hear what all the conversation was about. Roger told him, I tried to fix Rob with a fish eye, but he ignored me. "Give him his party," he said.
"Not so fast. We haven't any red points," I glomted.
"What about chicken?" Roger asked.
"Hobbs hates chicken. Got too much of it in France."
"That's all right," said the man who'd sworn to protect me, "chicken'll have to do if it all you can get."
Rob, I was learning, though he had been opposed to taking to him, was pathetically glad to have a boy around the house again. I seemed to fill some of the hollow left by Bill's absence.
Though Roger often tried us to the limit, he managed not to try

Operations 30 for Famous Swoose-Plane

By GRAHAM BERRY
Los Angeles, March 25 — (AP)—It's "Operations 30" tomorrow for the Swoose, a queen which refused to die.
The gallant Flying Fortress, the only warplane in service from Dec. 7, 1941, to V-J Day, is making the first leg of her last flight.
The heroine of William L. White's book, "Queens Die Proudly," leaves here for Chicago. There she'll be hanged until the Smithsonian Institution's national air museum is built in Washington, D. C. And in the museum the lone survivor of the original U.S. Far Eastern air force will find her final resting place along with other battle-scarred sky veterans.
At her controls tomorrow will be the man who skippered her through the war, Col. Frank Kurtz, formerly of Los Angeles and now of Washington, D. C.
Four members of her original crew also will be aboard: Maj. Harry Schriber, Galveston, Texas; her navigator, Capt. Roland Boone, Hemet, Calif.; her gunner, Maj. Charles T. "Doc" Bakersfield, Calif.; bombardier, and Capt. Harold Varner, San Rafael, Calif., crew chief.
"We have a hell of a lot of nostalgia tied up in that old gal," Col. Kurtz said.
Swoose who inspired his pretty blonde wife, Margo, to write the book, "My Rival, the Sky," their four-year-old daughter, Margo, Jr., is nicknamed "Swoosey."

Col. Kurtz, three times a member of the U.S. Olympic diving team, will head her north to circle Hamilton Field, Calif., and the nearby ranch of Gen. H. H. (Happy) Arnold, retired army air force officer, who was instrumental in establishing the national air museum. The bomber will make one refueling stop, at Omaha.
On her fuselage can still be seen the strange bird, half swan, half goose, from which she got her name. Under the picture are two words and a question mark: "It flies?"
Yes, she flew — through nearly four years of war. She and other queens of the 19th bombardment group, stationed at Clark field in the Philippines, flew and fought in those grim days of too little and too late. One by one her group-mates were blasted from the sky or on the ground. But the Swoose refused to die.
She flew 100 to 150 combat hours every month for seven months, bombing land installations and shipping and shooting down attacking Zeros.
She fought through the Philippines, New Guinea, Dutch East Indies and Celebes campaigns, collecting her full share of flak and bullet scars.
The Swoose set several speed records, including a flight from Brisbane, Australia, to San Francisco in 36 hours and 10 minutes. After the war the Swoose was loaned to the Smithsonian Institution and stored in a hangar at the old Swoose field near the sky on a flight officially designated as "Operations 30"—the last.

Dear Dorothy Dix: My sister and mother and I disagree continually on the subject of who will wash the dishes. Since I am the older of the girls, the family is about to be my mother's turn. I should clear the table, prepare the dog scraps and take the garbage out. This leaves my sister with only the chore of drying the dishes and putting away the cabinet. I think the Sis should have to prepare the dog food and feed the dog and take the garbage out.
Please help me to decide this problem as our family is continually bickering over this item and it is causing a awful lot of discord in our home.
BETTY ANNE

Answer: This is indeed, a terrible problem and my heart is torn with pity at the thought of three little girls who are forced to perform the household duties. Upon me, dishes and feeding the pup. Heaven help the poor creatures! But, as much as even women have to eat and the family is about to be broken up over lights over the dish pan, why not use paper plates and cups that can be burned up after a meal?

Port Allen, La., March 25 — (UP)—The state adjutant general despaired today of posting a gaping crevasse in the Mississippi river levee before Monday, said 1,600 to 1,800 persons living along Groose Tete bayou were not in immediate danger of being flooded out of their homes.
Grosse Tete bayou, the west of Port Allen, in Port Allen, five miles below the break, chocolate-colored river water bubbled through culverts. Advance tongues of the water were within half a mile of the center of Port Allen. The Red Cross ordered 600 refugees moved across the river to Baton Rouge, when water started creeping into the edge of Port Allen.
Brig. Gen. Raymond Hufft, the adjutant general, said after making a reconnaissance flight over the flooded area that residents along Grosse Tete bayou were in no immediate danger. But it could develop into a bad situation.
He explained that the flood waters are draining into Bayou Choctaw, west of Port Allen. From Bayou Choctaw, they flow into Plaquemine bayou and thence into the Gulf of Mexico.
The danger, he said, was that such a volume of water would overflow the bayous and flood the villages along them. Hufft announced he had set up a disaster relief agency in Baton Rouge, on the east side of the river, to coordinate the work of the national guard, state police and other agencies.
The flood still poured through the break undiminished and Hufft said he believed it would be Monday before it could be closed. A half moon-shaped levee is being built around the break. When it is finished, U. S. engineers will try to plug the break itself with rock.

"It is," I entered the argument. "I'd like to go." I thought what relief it would be to cut the ropes of Red Cross and home duties for a few days.
It boiled down to Rob deciding to stay home while I went with the Drummonds and Roger. As we were ready to leave, Rob gave his set of keys to the sedan to Roger. "Too much jingle-jangle," Roger said, removing the key.
"Not me!" Rob objected. "I've seen Yellowstone."
"You don't want a book—you've got a book," Roger quipped. "I thought Yellowstone National Park was wonderful enough to see many times."

Resignation of Ambassador to Moscow Accepted

Washington, March 25 — (AP)—President Truman today accepted the resignation of Walter Bedell Smith as ambassador to Moscow. The White House announced the president's action shortly after Smith called on the president to renew his long-pending request to return to army duty.
Presidential Press Secretary Charles C. Ross said Mr. Truman accepted Smith's request "with great reluctance" and that he did so to enable him to return to a field command.

Fair Enough

The New York Herald Tribune, formerly a Republican party-line of the stiffest editorial tradition and a what-to, fox-hunting voice of the upper classes of England, followed the meanderings of another line in recent years. This change has been most marked since the death of Ogden Reid, who was the heir to the Whitelaw Reid fortune and the English country life, which went with the estate. Ogden Reid was a kind man of more ability and sounder principles than the inbred aristocrats of the day had the intelligence to perceive. He was an amiable drinker who frequented of speakeasies and pretentious reporters and reviewers of the staff was consciously regarded as apple-polishing by a boss who hoped to have a few friends at court when the revolution came. Actually, he was a nice out-mannered fellow who liked to get out and even Lincoln. He found happiness in the empty babble of the alcoholics at the bar.

His wife, Helen Rogers Reid, had seemed to be head man at the paper a long time before he died, but the change that came when he died did not please her. She had exercised an important degree of control as long as he was here to do so. Mrs. Reid had been a working-girl in her youth. Her popular philosophy, or inflammation, for she may have no formal philosophy, cannot be stated explicitly on the basis of a consistent inspection of the paper since she took over. She has seemed to envy Eleanor Roosevelt's notoriety and Eleanor's chummy familiarity with those who have achieved careers and good living at the expense of exaggerating the woes of "minority groups" and personifying those "groups." Mrs. Reid's opinion on the consuming desires of the Roosevelt woman's magazine have put the Herald Tribune into extracurricular conceptions such as the weird annual windjamming, known as its forum, which is a political-ideological glove to the actual golden gloves. The more popular and is on the level, whereas there is no telling whether the gas-bags who bloat so importantly at Mrs. Reid's that which a co-sponsor of boxing would fearlessly denounce as sordid mockery.

The Sunday book department of the H-T has been a reliable index to its new policy. Its daily book feature, conducted by Lewis Gannett, has in the past been a line between Sunday's Gannett cited 14 times in the index to the records of the Dies and Thomas committees on Un-American Activities as a member of or fellow committee with groups which those committees in reasonable interpretation of their information, consisted as Communist fronts. Mrs. Reid once explained that he had allied with such parties in the quietest manner, in the hope that the experiment in Russia would turn out well. Uh-huh. But if that is the whole explanation, why did he flounce and stamp his pretty foot and pull a petulant moue the day that discovered that the Americans in the New York paper guild were raising alarms over the clandestine adoption of a pro-Communist resolution condemning the selective service act? This done during the Hitler-Stalin alliance, when the Communist party line opposed military preparations by the United States. Gannett insisted that the Communists had had nothing to do with the adoption of the resolution and that the question was one of Americanism vs. communism. This was just a lie because that was the one and only issue. It caused an awful fight.

Stranahan Shows Boys How to Play Course

Greensboro, N. C., March 26 — (AP) — The touring golf stars have acquired accounts with the Star mount Forest country club course. Toledo Amateur Frank Stranahan yesterday showed the boys how to play the course. The Ohio boy backed up a neat 34-32—66, five under par.

And the rest of the boys took their cue from Stranahan. Sixteen others broke par on the 10 more equal standard figures.

All of which set up a spirited scramble for today's second round and the 36-hole finale tomorrow.

Stranahan still has a host of hot shots breathing down his neck. He shot back of him at 67, three more at 68 and three others at 69. The trio one blow back included defending champion Lloyd Mangrum of Chicago, Johnny Bulla, one of Pittsburgh, now playing out of Pittsburgh, and Johnny Palmer, Badin, N. C. star.

Three dangerous 68 shooters were Cary Middlecott, Memphis, Tenn., Dick Metz, Virginia Beach, Va., and Sam Snead, White Sulphur Springs, W. Va.

Very much in the running with 69 were South African Bobby Locke, Glenn Teal, Jacksonville, Fla., and Ted Kroll of Philmont, Pa.

Porker Squad Game Attracts Grid Interest

Little Rock, March 26 — (AP) — It may be out of season, but football will be the No. 1 item of sports interest in Arkansas tonight. The center of that interest will be the University of Arkansas Red-White intrasquad spring practice game in Memorial stadium at 8 o'clock. It will be the first Red-White game ever played in the state capital and the first of two such attractions climaxed by spring training. The other will be played at Fayetteville next Friday.

Thousands of fans throughout the state are expected to trek to the stadium hoping to get answers to these questions:

How do the Razorbacks look with their new T formation, designed to put more deception, speed and punch into their offense?

How much help are the players up from last fall's great freshman team going to be in their first season with the varsity?

In an effort to give the fans the best possible show, Head Coach John Barnhill has divided his squad evenly. This, combined with the fact that each team will know the others plays and the prospect of a wet field, points to a low-scoring game despite the point-making reputation of the T.

But regardless of how many points are scored, the tilt will be good practice for the Porkers. They always have had trouble stopping the T, and Barnhill figures that will be a better job of it if they use that formation themselves. That was one of the main reasons for his decision to drop the single wing attack in favor of the T this spring.

The spectators will get a look at the freshmen. Several of them are listed as probably starters in the lines. Five of these "youngsters" weigh more than 200 pounds.

Another frosh, Jim Rinehart, will be one of the boys directing the Red from the quarterback's seat. His White counterpart will be Jimmy Phillips, a junior who used to play with Clemson.

The other starting backs will be seasoned performers — Alvin Burke, Buddy Rogers and Louis Schaufelke, for the Whites and Ray Parks, Tracy Scott and Leon Campbell for the Reds.

Fischel and Smith are the only freshmen in the Red forward wall. But all of the White linemen except Butz and Thornton are first-year men.

At least two Porker veterans who are expected to be key players next fall, Halback Ross Pritchard and Guard Don Reiderer, will miss the intrasquad scrap because of injuries.

Although only two or three meetoires a year are seen to fall, the number striking the earth annually probably is at least 100.

Kentucky Meets Aggies Tonight

Seattle, Wash., March 26 — (UP) — Kentucky's high scoring Wildcats will meet the defensive-minded Cowpokes of Oklahoma A and M tonight for the N.C.A.A. basketball strategies.

The boys from the bluegrass, aiming for their second straight N.C.A.A. title, were favored by six points over the Missouri Valley champions.

Oklahoma A and M sought to become the first team ever to win the national crown three times. The Aggies beat New York university for the title in 1945 and North Carolina in 1946.

But whether the incomparable Wildcats with their four Olympic stars, Al Groza, Ralph Beard, Wallace (Wah Wah) Jones and Cliff Barker, could take the measure of the crafty Cowpokes, who have boasted the best defensive record in the nation two years running, was the big question that interested the 116 basketball coaches here for the N.C.A.A.'s annual meeting.

The consensus was that both the championship squads were razor sharp. And the coaches, who have been meeting for the past three days, were unanimous that this was one of the best basketball battles of all time.

While the teams were getting set for the big fight, the coaches were winding up three and one-half days of meetings in downtown Seattle. Yesterday, they elected John Bunn of Springfield, Mass., college as president, succeeding Herbert Burt of Western Michigan.

"They also drafted a letter to all professional basketball teams asking their stance in the matter of 'raiding' college courts," said...

Nashville 'Blumes' Will Wear AAU Crown Second Year

St. Joseph, Mo., March 26 — (AP) — The Nashville, Tenn., Goldblumes will wear the AAU basketball crown for at least another year.

They won the championship for the second straight year last night by beating a home town team, the Nashville business college, in the finals of the state tournament.

The score was 35 to 10.

The Goldblumes had little difficulty with the business college team. They held a 23-13 halftime lead.

views of the Sunday and daily sections are no less political than artistic. The selections and the reviews are, in my opinion, bigoted against the liberal and truthful writers and loaded in favor of those who preach or mutter the Tribune's line. John T. Flynn's fine historical work, "The Roosevelt Myth," a factual and vehement presentation of the evil truth about Roosevelt, was blacklisted or ignored by the Tribune's reviewers for months. Meanwhile, many trivial and faulty works, consistent with the line, were reviewed not only Sunday but on week-days, too, and of course, rapturously.

For one example, there was a book by one Walter White, Negro, a tedious writer who has made a comfortable celebrity agitating against Jim Crow in the south. As a white man, Walter White would have only one thing to say to a hundred million white men in the United States and a very ordinary fellow. Being of "white" complexion and having Caucasian features, by some biological freak, this Negro writer was reviewing the pullmans and other venetian precincts in the south at no peril whatever because everybody thought he was a white man. His review was a masterpiece of incredible, uncorroborated and unimpeachable.

Flynn's book will be a library reference work as long as there is any interest in Roosevelt. It will be consulted by students. Not a single allegation in the book has been challenged, much less refuted. Notwithstanding this political boycott by the ostensibly artistic literary departments of the Herald Tribune and other papers of similar bluish hue, the reviewer "Myth" jumped into the list of non-fiction best-sellers and stayed up there for six months. Flynn's publisher inquired when the H-T would review it and finally, in despair, agreed to publish it. As a paid advertisement a criticism by an impartial reviewer which had been published elsewhere. Finally, the H-T, possibly embarrassed, did condescend to review "The Roosevelt Myth" and handed it over to a precommitted devotee of Roosevelt and the Myth. He did the sort of job that would be expected.

The same treatment, incidentally, had been given to George Mergerson's priceless contribution to valid history, entitled "Pearl Harbor, The Story of the Secret War," which sold badly for a work of such magnitude and impeccable honesty and authority.

When they can impeach the statements or find any fault with the emphasis on truths, reviewers of this school fall back on the observation that the author is a "bittery" fellow. By that test all American books written by those who read with reserve. Any library which lacks these two and the late Charles A. Beard's "President Roosevelt and the Coming of the war, 1917" is incomplete and unforgotten.

Yet the Herald Tribune and the New York Times as well, whose book departments suffer largely from the political maladies of the H-T, both found space and enthusiastic reviews for the review of the works of the sullying sneak, deaconian, alias John Roy Carlson, who was damned as a liar without conscience when he came to trial in the federal court. This professional liar lost repeatedly wherever victims of his fearful imagination took the trouble to bring him to bar.

The Herald Tribune again pretenses to political respectability as a Republican paper is no such thing. There is no daily and Sunday day combination in the United States better entitled to inherit the reputation of Marshall Field's thing, otherwise called P.M., unless it be the Daily Worker itself.

Commission to Probe Dispute Decision

New York, March 26 — (UP) — The New York Boxing commission will begin an inquiry on Monday night on the widely protested, 12-round split decision that was awarded Middleweight Jake Motta of the Bronx over Robert Villamain of France at Madison Square Garden.

Egan witnessed the excellent fight from a ringside seat. And he heard the five-minute storm of protest from the 11,491 fans. And he tried to get a poll of 13 boxing writers on the referee's scored six that only one — Barney Nasser of the New York Post Home News — thought LaMotta had won.

Referee Harry Ebbets and Judge Harold Barnes favored LaMotta, but Judge Charles Shortell voted for Villamain. Ebbets scored six rounds for LaMotta, four for Villamain and two even. Barnes favored LaMotta 6-3-1. Shortell favored Villamain 7-4-1. The United Press favored Villamain 7-3-2.

LaMotta, who was knocked out and suspended for several months after his "strange" defeat by Billy Fox in November, 1947, was favored at 9 to 5 in the betting last night.

Club Chief Dislikes Sale of Dickson

(UP) — Manager Eddie Dyer of the St. Louis Cardinals, who has been sounding off about the sale of pitcher Murrey Dickson to the Pittsburgh Pirates in a mid-winter deal, today gave a mild retort from club President Fred Saigh.

Saigh, who recently bought the controlling interest in the Cards from Bob Hannegan, explained: "It is true that Manager Dyer and I have had different opinions about the club's sale of Murrey Dickson to the Pittsburgh Pirates. There will be other things in the operation of our baseball organization about which Manager Dyer and I have had different opinions. If Manager Dyer were a yes man he would lose his value to the organization."

Dyer, who complained that he was not consulted when the Dickson trade was made, is signed to a two-year contract at a reported salary of $40,000 a year.
